Steven Bright is a partner in the Banking & Finance Service Group and the Real Estate & Finance Practice Group. Over the course of his 30-year career, Steve has built a solid reputation for systematically designing the best way to structure sophisticated and complex transactions. His success lies in his ability to visualize the "big picture" by first breaking down deals into their constituent elements and then addressing each element to determine how it fits within his client's overall objectives.

Steve represents some of the most prominent lenders and leasing companies in connection with both transactional and workout situations. He also represents sophisticated businesses and real estate entities. Steve is keenly aware of his clients' need for practical and timely advice. He takes a straightforward approach when handling complex transactions by quickly identifying critical issues and providing his clients with positive steps they need to take.

As a youth, Steve had aspirations of becoming the closer for the Chicago Cubs - the player who the team turns to in the ninth inning as their best chance for pulling off a win in a tight situation. While he may not be standing on the mound in Wrigley Field, he gets the same thrill everyday from being the kind of attorney who can establish the most effective, and where necessary, creative solutions to help his clients achieve their goals.

Steve is a frequent lecturer on strategic planning for clients, and is recognized by Leading Lawyer's Network in Banking & Financial Institutions Law, and Real Estate Finance Law.
