

Howard Dakoff Quoted in Crain's Article on Condo Association Suit

January 21, 2015

Community Association partner Howard Dakoff was quoted in "Woman sues condo association over attack outside building" published by Crain's Chicago Business. The article reports on a West Loop woman who sued her condo association and a property management firm, alleging they were negligent and failed to provide adequate security near the building entrance and a nearby alley where she says she was attacked last year. Howard indicates the directors of the association were saddened to hear of the alleged crime, however, the association "expects it will not be held liable for unforeseeable acts of an individual not affiliated with the association" on property the association does not control.

To read the full article, click here.