Erin is an associate in the Litigation and Labor & Employment practice groups. Erin works with LP's litigation clients and guides them through all facets of the life span of a case, from discovery to trial. In her practice, Erin especially enjoys working with clients to effectively address their issues and help resolve their matter in the most efficient way possible. Erin also works with companies to develop various employment documents and helps them understand and meet their obligations under labor laws while still adhering to their larger business goals.

Prior to joining LP, Erin worked as a litigation associate at Segal McCambridge where she focused on products liability litigation. She also served as a law clerk in the Cook County States Attorney's Office in the Domestic Violence Division and extended the Illinois Supreme Court for Justice Anne Burke.
